

resort and spa

Isola delle Rose, Italy

Photography by NICOLAS DUMONT,
ELAN FLEISHER, and MIRCO TOFFOLO

1. A modern junior suite at the JW Marriott Venice is outfitted with soft tones and textures.

2. The resort restored and incorporated Isola delle Rose's 19 original 20th-century buildings and was designed with the island's architectural history in mind.

3. Some rooms were crafted using a "box within a box" technique, leaving some brick exposed.

4. A spacious 750-square-foot premium suite features a table made of wood from the Venetian lagoon and a large patio.

5. The rooftop pool, one of several on property, offers views of Venice and the lagoon.

Owner

Aareal Bank

Management Company

Marriott International

Architecture and Interior Design Firm

Matteo Thun & Partners, Milan

Architecture and Interior Design Project Team

Matteo Thun and Luca Colombo

Landscape

Matteo Thun & Partners

*Designers did not provide sourcing for FF&E shown.

jw marriott venice resort & spa

Isola delle Rose, Italy

Photography by MIRCO TOFFOLO

Owner
Aareal Bank
Management Company
Marriott International
Architecture and Interior Design Firm
Matteo Thun & Partners,
Milan
Architecture and Interior Design
Project Team
Matteo Thun and Luca
Colombo

1. The 18,800-square-foot GOCO Spa Venice at the JW Marriott Venice is housed in an early 20th-century building with copious outdoor spaces and greenery.

2. The airy and contemporary spa lobby features a mix of wood and glass with metal screens separating inside from out.

3. The spa's indoor-outdoor pool looks out over the Venetian lagoon.